Back in the mid '80's when I was using stoneware clay, I just pretended to get nice colors. I tried white stoneware and several other whitish clays - even tried several other company's porcelain, but Jiki is superior.

I have been using Mile Hi's Jiki Porcelain for over twenty years. Jiki is great for my hand built sculptural pieces as well as the thrown forms I hand build on.

I have tried others -I like Jiki!

Paragon kilns help students create priceless ceramic treasures

Ceramic ware survives the test of time. Ancient Greek and Roman pottery is now treasured artwork.

The 7th and 8th grade students at Brandenburg Middle School in Garland, Texas have made ceramics that may one day become family heirlooms, treasured for generations. They worked under the guidance of Gennell Murphy and Christy Bautista. The ware was fired in a Paragon digital TnF-28-3 kiln.

Paragon kilns have been helping students create ceramic art since 1948. Our kilns are designed for the harsh environment of the school, where they are often neglected. They fire day in and day out with little maintenance. They are workhorses. The top row of wall bricks in the TnF-28-3 is blank (no element grooves) to prevent brick damage caused by leaning
